INTELLIGENCE BRIEFING COURSE

DESCRIPTION

This course has been revised to provide the participants with some additional preparation time before they present their briefing. Instead of meeting ten half-day sessions, the participants will meet three times a week for three weeks. One day each week the class will meet all day; the other two days will run from 0900-1200.

Participants in this course will learn proper briefing techniques by applying basic principles in the preparation and presentation of practice briefings. Students will prepare, organize, and present primarily informational briefings. These will be videotaped and will be critiqued by the instructor and co-students so that all participants will be able to identify their individual strengths and weaknesses in the briefing mode.
